Fawning
Dr Ingrid Clayton

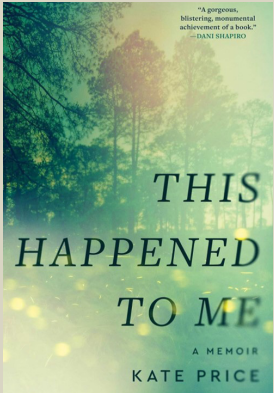

Falsely labelled as co-dependency, fawning can present as being more of who someone is: smart, generous, funny, or beautiful, while for others it's about being less: vocal, ethnic, creative or boundaried. Fawning can be visible or invisible, it can take the shape of sex, money, or emotional dysregulations, but one thing remains constant: it's about finding safety in an unsafe world, often at our own expense. Dr Ingrid Clayton provides resources and tools for anyone who has lost intrinsic parts of themselves to fawning.

Milena and Margarete
Gwen Strauss

From the moment they met at Ravensbrück concentration camp in 1940, Milena Jesenska and Margarete Bube-Neumann were inseparable. Czech Milena was Kafka's first translator and epistolary lover, and a journalist opposed to fascism. German Margarete was swept up in the fervour of the Bolshevik revolution and exiled to a Soviet gulag, before being moved to Ravensbrück. Milena and Margarete loved each other at the risk of their lives, but as history stigmatised lesbians, survivors kept silent. This book explores these silences and celebrates two strong women who fought for their love.
